Humes, Gibson to highlight Boys and Girls Club brunch

BY BOB DEMAREE

Larry Humes and Danny Gibson, who both grew up as members of the Lide White Boys and Girls Club, will be highlighted at the second annual Growing Greatness Champagne Brunch on Saturday with a theme of “Seeds of Greatest: Crafting Character at the Club.”

“These two guys together show the growth and the long history of the Boys and Girls Club building good character, and how we’re still doing that today. That’s the thing we do best,” said David Woolpy, executive director of the Boys and Girls Club of Jefferson County.

Humes, Indiana’s Mr. Basketball in 1962, will be the guest of honor while Gibson, Madison’s boys basketball coach, will be the keynote speaker of the event to be held Saturday at the Eagle Cotton Mill Fairfield Inn and Suites beginning at 10:30 a.m. and continuing through 1 p.m.

A 1962 graduate of Madison Consolidated High School, Humes was part of the Cubs’ team that had a four-year record of 97-5 and was a state finalist in 1962. He went on to play for Evansville College (later re-named University of Evansville) while winning NCAA Division II national championships in 1964 and 1965. He was the Purple Aces’ career scoring leader until passed by Batesville’s Colt Ryan in 2013.

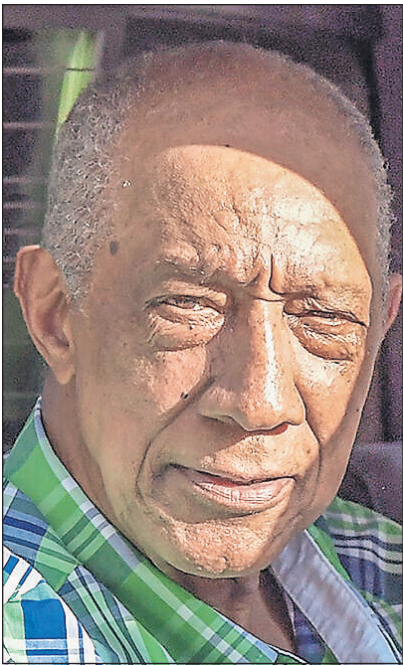

Gibson, a 2002 graduate of Madison, was a freshman on Madison’s 1999 semistate basketball team and a three-year starter. He went on to play college basketball at the University of Southern Indiana, then played more than a decade in numerous pro leagues in Europe. He just completed his first year as the Cubs’ head coach.

The brunch will include a video about Humes specially created for the event that not only tells the story of his life and career, but the influence of Lide White, the Madison educator for whom the local club was named until 2021 when it was rebranded the Boys and Girls Club of Jefferson County to

County health department faces funding concerns

BY BOB DEMAREE

Funding uncertainties loom over state and local health departments in Indiana and Kentucky due to concerns from proposed federal spending discussed by Jefferson County Health Administrator Lindsey Wyne at Thursday’s meeting of the county’s Health and Human Relations Commission.

Wyne said funding is a concern — not just federal funds — but also with less funding likely in 2026 from the State of Indiana through the Indiana Health First initiative.

Health First was a result of legislation in the 2023 Indiana General Assembly as an investment in prevention leading to healthier communities and workforces. For the county to receive Health First funding, the health department must meet requirements in providing specific core services. “It is a concern funding could be going away and putting a squeeze on our ability to, not necessarily meet the requirements, but how far we can reach to do that,” Wyne said.

Last week, the Associated Press reported federal health officials said they are pulling back $11.4 billion nationwide in COVID-19-related funds for state and local public health departments and other health organizations throughout the nation.

Indiana Capital Chronicle reported that will result in an estimated $40 million less funding in Indiana. Greta Sanderson, chief communications officer for the Indiana Department of Health (IDOH), said the agency “has received this notification and is working to minimize the impact to Hoosiers.”

The potential amount lost from the federal cutbacks to Kentucky local health departments from the Kentucky State Department of Health is not yet available. On Thursday, the Lexington Herald-Leader reported Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear challenged the federal government for canceling federal grants that went to state and local health departments during the COVID-19 pandemic. “These contracts can only be terminated for cause — which means someone did something wrong,” Beshear said. “And they are trying to define cause as the pandemic is over. That’s not a legal argument. If we have to go to court, we will.”

In Indiana, funding for Health First Indiana which was $150 million statewide this year will decrease to $100 million in both 2026 and 2027. In Health First’s initial full year in 2024, Jefferson County received $374,182.37, increasing to $723,168.31 this year. Meanwhile, Switzerland County received $155,192.59 in 2024 and $299,934.94 this year.

Wyne estimated Jefferson County will receive about one-fourth less in the Health First funding next year, amounting to nearly $200,000. “That definitely affects what we’re going to be able to do in the community,” said Wyne.

She said Health First funding was created to be an addition to grant funding the county was already receiving but “we’re already seeing grants going away which fund positions” within the health department. “To be good stewards of that money and also to meet our requirements” for receiving the Health First funding “we have to make sure all the

114th Custer Contest is Friday

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Five of the top seniors at Madison Consolidated High School will compete in the distinguished 114-year tradition of the Custer Contest on Friday at 7 p.m. at Opal E. Sherman Auditorium.

Participants for this year’s Custer Contest are Evan Cammack, Avery Clayton, Sophie Guirguis, Lincoln Sheets and Emma Wynn. The oratorical contest began in 1912 for students at the very top of their class who attended all four years at Madison Consolidated High School. For the contest, each student selects a literary passage that can be brought to life on stage without the use of props. Each student chooses a coach to assist in preparation.

Cammack, son of Chris and Angie Cammack, will present from the book, “Tuesdays with Morrie,” by Mitch Albom. His coach is Laura Ratcliff. Cammack is undecided on his college choice but plans to attend a four-year college and major in Social Studies Education. While a student at MCHS, Cammack was a member of the boys soccer team and participated in Sources of Strength, Student Council, Student Athletic Council and National Honor Society.

Clayton, daughter of Neil and Jennifer Clayton, will present from the novel, “The Book Thief,” by Markus Zusak. Her coach is Aaron Kelsey. She plans to attend either Georgetown University or Columbia University to major in Political Science and French. Her high school activities have included girls tennis,

Todd Palmer Yarling

Todd Palmer Yarling, age 68, of Hanover, IN, entered this life on Aug. 19, 1956, in Shelbyville, IN. He was the loving son of the late Karl and Mae Rose Gahimer Yarling. He spent his early years in the Shelbyville area until his freshman year of high school, when his family moved to Hanover. He graduated from Southwestern High School in 1974, and later attended Hanover College. Shortly after the move to Hanover, Todd and his family became involved in the hydroplane racing world through safety and rescue operations — with Todd serving as a rescue diver. This hands-on experience not only deepened his respect for the sport but also ignited a passion for the river and powerboat racing that would shape the rest of his life. What began as service on the sidelines quickly turned into a lifelong pursuit — both on and off the water. Todd’s driving career began in the APBA Inboard Racing circuit with his 5-litre hydroplane, Nautilus. In 1983, he reached the pinnacle of the sport by joining forces with Jim and Nancy Sedam to drive in the unlimited hydroplane class. He piloted the U-22 Miss Tosti Asti, and from 1984 to 1987, Todd raced a new U-22 under the Sedam’s ownership. At the close of the 1987 season, the Sedams retired from the sport, but Todd’s racing journey was far from over. He went on to drive several other renowned unlimited-class hydroplanes, including: U-11 for Bill Wurster, Jr, U-9 for Alan Vordermeier, U-99.9 for Fred Leland, U-3 for Ed Cooper Sr. & Jr, UR-5 for Larry & Mike Rutkauskas, and U-6 Miss Madison — proudly representing the citizens of Madison, IN. Todd’s racing career marked by dedication, sportsmanship, and a love for the water. As news of his unexpected passing spread, the hydroplane racing community mourned the loss of a beloved driver and teammate. As one tribute put it: “It’s a sad day today in hydroplane racing to learn of the unexpected passing of Todd Yarling.” Outside of racing, Todd continued his career in the marine industry. He worked for Southern Indiana Marine in Scottsburg and later as a service specialist at BassPro/ Tracker Marine retiring in 2023, after many years of dedicated service. On Aug. 20, 1983, Todd married the love of his life, Tanya Sue Whaley, in a ceremony at their home. Together they built a life full of love, laughter, and memories. They were blessed with two daughters: Tabitha “Tabby” Mary Rose Yarling, who survives, and Tasha Julia Yarling, who died in infancy. Todd’s love for his family was unwavering, and he was a proud husband and father. Todd’s legacy lives on not just in the roar of the engines he once commanded, but in the love he gave so freely to family, friends, and the racing world. Todd is survived by his beloved daughter, Tabitha “Tabby” Mary Rose Yarling of Hanover, his sister, Yvonna Thomas and her husband Wes of Hanover; his brother, Ky Yarling of Hanover, his sister-in-law, Beverly Deckard and her husband Eddie of Bloomington; his brother-in-law, Bobby Dale Whaley and his wife Hope of Spencer. He also leaves behind a cherished group of nieces and nephews: Maggie (Bri), Cory (Shelby), Karl (Molly), Kody, Sam (Chelsea), and Kiboni, Lindsey (Jeff), Brittney (Pat), Trent (Steff) and Tyler (Sarah). He was preceded in death by his parents, Karl and Mae Rose Yarling; his loving wife, Tanya Sue Whaley Yarling; his infant daughter, Tasha Julia Yarling; and several beloved aunts, uncles, and grandparents. Per Todd’s wishes, no formal services will be held. A celebration of life will be planned for later this summer — during the warm season that Todd loved, when hydroplanes raced and the river called. Memorial contributions may be made to Tabby’s Fund or to Special Olympics. Cards are available at the Morgan & Nay Funeral Centres of Hanover, and Madison. Online condolences, remembrances, and memorials, can be left at www.morgan-nay.com.

conform to the national organization’s desire to have standardized names around the state and country. Woolpy said during a recent conversation with Humes, he “told stories about Lide White, who was the first principal of Lydia Middleton Elementary School. I felt like I was reading a documentary” in what she did to reach out and help mold the boys in their growing up years. Hank Bentz, a Cubs teammate of Humes who will introduce the guest of honor, said “Larry wasn’t just a great athlete, he was a great man. He was always teaching, inspiring those around him. No wonder he went on to teach high school and college. He saw life as a lesson and he shared those lessons with us.” Woolpy said the Boys and Girls Club prioritizes three key outcomes — academic success, good character and citizenship, and healthy lifestyles with this year’s focus being good character and citizenship. Last year — the inaugural brunch — focused on academic success with speakers Dr. Katie Jenner, Indiana’s secretary of education, and Dr. Teresa Brown, Madison Consolidated Schools superintendent. Tickets for the brunch are $55 each or $600 for an eight-seat table, available on the club’s website at <https://www.bgcjeffer-sonco.org/> or by calling Kristin Consley at the club 812-265-5811 during club hours. Woolpy said the brunch is a fundraiser for the club which now serves 150 youth a day, up from 100 last year. This summer the club will partner with Madison Consolidated Schools for a five-week summer school that will serve approximately 100 students for free.

Camp Louis Ernst open house set for Saturday, April 26

BY THE COURIER STAFF
Friends of Camp Louis Ernst will host a third annual Open House, “Campfire 2025” at the historic former scout camp, Camp Louis Ernst, near Dupont on Saturday, April 26.
The camp has existed for nearly a century, placed in a trust deed to the Boy Scouts in 1928, and opening to scouting in 1930. Camp Ernst has served as a camp and retreat for Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and other youth serving organizations.
To save the camp for the youth of today and tomorrow, Friends of Camp Louis Ernst obtained ownership of the camp in February of 2023. Within that time much work to update, improve and restore Camp Louis Ernst has taken place including a newly remodeled dining hall.

Former staff, campers, scout alumni and interested persons from the community are invited to the open house to see first hand the improvements that have been made. Historical memorabilia displays, camp tours and many other activities will take place throughout the day.
Visitors and alumni are welcome to visit anytime between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m. and stay for as long as they are available. Alumni and guests may join for lunch at 11:30 a.m. There will be an alumni dinner at 5 p.m. The event and meals are free of charge, but donations are appreciated.

Additional information can be found at camplouisernt.com or facebook.com/camplouisernt. To help in planning for meals, please RSVP on the Friends of Camp Louis Ernst Facebook page or email at friendsofcamplouisernt@gmail.com

BY THE COURIER STAFF
Madison native Chris Cammack has been promoted by Grote Industries to Division Manager of U.S. Traditional Sales.
A 26-year Grote employee, Cammack has previously worked in marketing, business development, product management and sales.
In his new role, Cammack will be responsible for organizing and coordinating all sales and support activities within the

Chris Cammack

Traditional Division. His leadership will be instrumental in driving the US Traditional Sales Division, and Cammack will be responsible for US Lighting and US Accessories sales.
“We are thrilled to have Chris step into this role,” said Matt Forner, director of Aftermarket Sales. “His extensive industry experience and knowledge will empower us to explore new markets and technologies, driving our business forward in the rapidly evolving traditional and automotive landscape.”
Grote Industries is a global leader in the development, manufacture and supply of innovative visibility, safety, and smart trailer systems for the on-highway, off-highway and trailer body builder markets. Grote products include a full range of vehicle lighting, electrical, reflective and telematics systems, and the accessories necessary to support their long-life performance.

Family owned since 1901, the company is headquartered in Madison, and serves international customers with locations in Canada, Mexico, Europe and Asia.

No indication of measles outbreak issues in Jefferson County

BY BOB DEMAREE
With a measles outbreak now reported in five U.S. states, there has yet been any indication of that in Jefferson County.
At Thursday’s meeting of the Health and Human Relations Commission, County Health Administrator Lindsey Wyne was asked by commission chair Jane Stormer if she thinks Jefferson County is an at-risk area for a measles outbreak.
Wyne said she doesn’t know for certain if Jefferson County is at-risk, but that she hasn’t received any indication that the county is at-risk. “Our immunization rates (for children) in this county tend to be pretty decent. We are noticing a trend” that the county’s immunization rates have seen a slight decline. “It’s something we’re trying new technique to see if we can’t fix. These are the required vaccines. We’re not talking about additional.” For example, she said MMR, the vaccine against measles, mumps and rubella, is one that’s “kind of big” for children to receive. “We are watching it. We have a plan in place. We are staying up to date on the guidelines and what the state is pushing down.”

The Associated Press reported 73 new measles cases last week in Texas and there are now 400 cases across 17 counties in that state. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention defines an outbreak as three or more related cases, establishing outbreaks in New Mexico with 44 cases, Kansas with 23 cases Ohio with 10 cases and Oklahoma with 9 cases. Cases have also been reported in Alaska, California, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Vermont and Washington.
Already, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has reported more measles cases this year than in all of 2024 when there were 285.
The MMR vaccine is the best way to avoid the measles, according to the CDC. The first shot is recommended for children between 12 and 15 months and the second between 4 and 6 years old.
Public health experts say there are some adults who should consider getting revaccinated. That includes older adults who were born after 1957 and were vaccinated before 1968, particularly those who they live in an area with an outbreak.

Before the first measles vaccines were developed in the 1960s, nearly everyone got the disease during childhood by the time they reached 15 years old. So people born before 1957 are assumed to have natural immunity. In 1968, an improved version of the measles vaccine was created by Dr. Maurice Hilleman, a pioneer in vaccine development.
Wyne said new doses of the MMR have been ordered for the Jefferson County Health Department.
Adults with “presumptive evidence of immunity” generally don’t need measles shots now, the CDC said. Criteria include written documentation of adequate vaccination earlier in life, and lab confirmation of past infection or being born before 1957.

FATALITY REVIEW
In other health-related matters, Wyne said there is currently an effort to establish a county fatality review team. “It can be insightful and show a trend in your community ... I’m really looking forward to seeing the trends in this county to see what kind of things get put in place to help” address them.
She noted one decade ago Scott County had a needle exchange program that was instituted because of the worst HIV outbreak in Indiana history. “It was because infectious disease data gets reported to the health department, and because of that, they were able to see a trend, and where it originated, and they were able to help that, and correct that.”
She said even though fatality review is “a very dark and upsetting topic, it is very beneficial to the community” to have the data to know the trends in the county’s health.

Wyne said the county health department has the availability of Narcan, a product to treat narcotic overdose in an emergency situation, that’s free with a two-minute instruction video.
Commission member Cami Keltch told of reports from Lawrence and Monroe counties in which there had been increased number of overdoses where multiple doses of Narcan were not effective, and asked Wyne if that has been experienced in Jefferson County.

Wyne said, “I have not been informed of that. It doesn’t necessarily mean that it’s not happening,” but the data on death is housed at the health department. “It’s not a trend we have currently seen, or if we have, then the death certificates have not been finalized.”
In other business, Bramer said the non-profit Jefferson County Health Initiative (JefCo) is continuing its work towards bringing a YMCA or community health center to the county. “It’s still moving forward,” he said, with potential location possibly be considered near Norton King’s Daughters’ Health on State Road 62 east of U.S. 421.

Beshear remains consistent with veto pen

GOP lawmakers just as consistent with override vote

BY BRUCE SCHREINER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Knowing the odds of winning were stacked against him, Democratic Gov. Andy Beshear nevertheless vetoed bills sent his way by the Republican-dominated Kentucky legislature with by-now familiar themes: abortion, Medicaid and diversity initiatives.

The bills reprised partisan disputes that have become as much a sign of springtime in Kentucky as the tulips blooming at the state Capitol. But they also sent fresh signals to national Democrats about who Beshear is as speculation continues about whether he'll run for president in 2028.

"His veto pen has been consistent," said Democratic political strategist Mark Riddle. "It's been authentic and it's within his core value set. And that's a very easy argument to take to the country."

The vetoes, Riddle said, signal "who he will fight for and who he will take on and fight against."

In practical terms, Beshear couldn't stop Kentucky Republicans from doing what they wanted. In overriding his vetoes with methodical efficiency on Thursday, they followed the same script that's played out at the end of legislative sessions throughout Beshear's two terms as governor.

Still, that didn't stop him from seizing the moment to shed light on his political beliefs, casting his fights with Republicans in ways that could easily shift toward a more national audience.

"By now," Beshear said in a statement Friday, "Kentuckians know that I'll always do what I believe is right, and the right thing here was to veto these bills."

Known for an even-keeled, disciplined style, Beshear's willingness to push back against Republican supermajorities could bolster his political stock in national Democratic circles. Beshear has won three elections in GOP-dominated Kentucky — once as attorney general and twice as governor.

Former Kentucky state Sen. Damon Thayer, a Republican who spent years in Senate leadership, said Beshear's vetoes show his true colors as a "traditional liberal Democrat." For years, Thayer made the motions for the Senate to override those vetoes, calling it "one of my favorite parts of the job."

"It's just been frustrating to me over the years that the voting public that seems so enamored with him hasn't really paid attention to the fact that he's vetoed ... bills that the majority of Kentuckians support," Thayer said.

That's not the whole picture. Each year, stacks of bills signed by Beshear far outnumber his vetoes. And despite a rocky relationship with GOP lawmakers, they've teamed up on far-reaching legislation in recent years — legalizing medical marijuana and sports betting and steering federal funding toward such shared priorities as broadband expansion and infrastructure.

But veto battles have exposed the friction in Kentucky's divided government. That included longstanding culture-war issues — abortion, conversion therapy and diversity, equity and inclusion programs — as GOP lawmakers swept aside Beshear vetoes on Thursday.

Supporters of the abortion measure said it offered clarity to doctors fearful of violating Kentucky law for terminating pregnancies while treating expectant mothers with grave complications. Amid the state's near-total abortion ban, the bill offers guidelines for doctors in such emergencies, they said.

Beshear said it would have the opposite effect, siding with abortion-rights supporters. The governor said it would undermine the clinical judgment of doctors and put pregnant women at greater risk when faced with medical emergencies.

David Walls, executive director of The Family Foundation, a socially conservative group, said the veto exposed Beshear as a "mouthpiece" for abortion-rights groups

In rejecting a bill to dismantle DEI efforts at public universities, Beshear cast his veto in terms of his faith. He said diversity should be embraced as a strength and branded the legislation as being "about hate."

"I believe in the Golden Rule that says we love our neighbor as ourselves, and there are no exceptions, no asterisks," said Beshear, a church deacon. "We love and we accept everyone."

Republicans sprung a big change for Medicaid — adding a work requirement for able-bodied adult recipients with no dependents — just ahead of the deadline to retain their override power.

Beshear answered with a veto, saying some adults would lose health coverage, and Republicans overrode him. GOP state Sen. Chris McDaniel has said Republicans are committed to supporting vulnerable Kentuckians but added: "This nation demands that those who can put forth effort do."

Beshear also denounced conversion therapy as "torture" in vetoing legislation that safeguards access to the practice. Conversion therapy is the scientifically discredited practice of trying to "convert" LGBTQ+ people to heterosexuality or traditional gender expectations through therapeutic treatment. With their override, Republicans nullified restrictions Beshear has placed on the practice in an executive order last year.

In his veto message, Beshear said policymakers should be protecting kids, not "subjecting them to discredited methods that jeopardize their health, wellbeing and safety."

Smaller, cheaper nuclear reactors has states racing to attract industry

BY MARC LEVY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

HARRISBURG, Pa. — With the promise of newer, cheaper nuclear power on the horizon, U.S. states are vying to position themselves to build and supply the industry's next generation as policymakers consider expanding subsidies and paving over regulatory obstacles.

Advanced reactor designs from competing firms are filling up the federal government's regulatory pipeline as the industry touts them as a reliable, climate-friendly way to meet electricity demands from tech giants desperate to power their fast-growing artificial intelligence platforms.

The reactors could be operational as early as 2030, giving states a short runway to roll out the red carpet, and they face lingering public skepticism about safety and growing competition from renewables like wind and solar. Still, the reactors have high-level federal support, and utilities across the U.S. are working to incorporate the energy source into their portfolios.

Last year, 25 states passed legislation to support advanced nuclear energy and this year lawmakers have introduced over 200 bills supportive of nuclear energy, said Marc Nichol of the Nuclear Energy Institute, a trade association whose members include power plant owners, universities and labor unions.

"We've seen states taking action at ever-increasing levels for the past few years now," Nichol said in an interview.

SMALLER, MORE FLEXIBLE NUCLEAR REACTORS

Smaller reactors are, in theory, faster to build and easier to site than conventional reactors. They could be factory-built from standard parts and are touted as flexible enough to plunk down for a single customer, like a data center or an industrial complex.

Advanced reactors, called small modular reactors and microreactors, produce a fraction of the energy produced by the conventional nuclear reactors built around the world for the last 50 years. Where conventional reactors produce 800 to 1,000 megawatts, or enough to power about half a million homes, modular reactors produce 300 megawatts or less and microreactors produce no more than 20 megawatts.

Tech giants Amazon and Google are investing in nuclear reactors to get the power they need, as states compete with Big Tech, and each other, in a race for electricity.

STATES ARE EMBRACING NUCLEAR ENERGY

For some state officials, nuclear is a carbon-free source of electricity that helps them meet greenhouse gas-reduction goals. Others see it as an always-on power source to replace an accelerating wave of retiring coal-fired power plants.

Tennessee Gov. Bill Lee last month proposed more than $90 million to help subsidize a Tennessee Valley Authority project to install several small reactors, boost research and attract nuclear tech firms.

Long a proponent of the TVA's nuclear project, Lee also launched Tennessee's Nuclear Energy Fund in 2023, designed to attract a supply chain, including a multibillion-dollar uranium enrichment plant billed as the state's biggest-ever industrial investment.

In Utah, where Gov. Spencer Cox announced "Operation Gigawatt" to double the state's electricity generation in a decade, the Republican wants to spend $20 million to prepare sites for nuclear. State Senate President J. Stuart Adams told colleagues when he opened the chamber's 2025 session that Utah needs to be the "nation's nuclear hub."

Texas Gov. Greg Abbott declared his state is "ready to be No. 1 in advanced nuclear power" as Texas lawmakers consider billions in nuclear power incentives.

Michigan lawmakers are considering millions of dollars in incentives to develop and use the reactors, as well as train a nuclear industry workforce.

One state over, Indiana lawmakers this month passed legislation to let utilities more quickly seek reimbursement for the cost to build a modular reactor, undoing a decades-old prohibition designed to protect ratepayers from bloated, inefficient or, worse, aborted power projects.

In Arizona, lawmakers are considering a utility-backed bill to relax environmental regulations if a utility builds a reactor at the site of a large industrial power user or a retired coal-fired power plant.

BIG EXPECTATIONS, UNCERTAIN FUTURE

Still, the devices face an uncertain future.

No modular reactors are operating in the U.S. and a project to build the first, this one in Idaho, was terminated in 2023, despite getting federal aid.

The U.S. Department of Energy last year, under then-President Joe Biden, estimated the U.S. will need an additional 200 gigawatts of new nuclear capacity to keep pace with future power demands and reach net-zero emissions of planet-warming greenhouse gases by 2050 to avoid the worst effects of climate change.

The U.S. currently has just under 100 gigawatts of nuclear power operating. More than 30 advanced nuclear projects are under consideration or planned to be in operation by the early 2030s, Nichol of the NEI said, but those would supply just a fraction of the 200 gigawatt goal.

Work to produce a modular reactor has drawn billions of dollars in federal subsidies, loan guarantees and more recently tax credits signed into law by Biden.

Those have been critical to the nuclear industry, which expects them to survive under President Donald Trump, whose administration it sees as a supporter.

SUPPLY CHALLENGES AND COMPETITION FROM RENEWABLES

The U.S. remains without a long-term solution for storing radioactive waste, safety regulators are under pressure from Congress to approve designs and there are serious questions about industry claims that the smaller reactors are efficient, safe and reliable, said Edwin Lyman, director of nuclear power safety at the Union of Concerned Scientists.

Plus, Lyman said, "the likelihood that those are going to be deployable and instantly 100% reliable right out of the gate is just not consistent with the history of nuclear power development. And so it's a much riskier bet."

NUCLEAR ALSO HAS COMPETITION FROM RENEWABLE ENERGIES

Brendan Kochunas, an assistant professor of nuclear engineering at the University of Michigan, said advanced reactors may have a short window to succeed, given the regulatory scrutiny they undergo and the advances in energy storage technologies to make wind and solar power more reliable.

Those storage technologies could develop faster, bring down renewables' cost and, ultimately, make more economic sense than nuclear, Kochunas said.

SUPPLY CHAIN FOR BUILDING REACTORS IS ANOTHER QUESTION

The U.S. lacks high-quality concrete- and steel-fabrication design skills necessary to manufacture a nuclear power plant, Kochunas said.

That introduces the prospect of higher costs and longer timelines, he said. While foreign suppliers could help, there also is the fuel to consider.

Kathryn Huff, a former top Energy Department official who is now an associate professor at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, said uranium enrichment capacity in the U.S. and among its allies needs to grow in order to support reactor production.

First-of-their-kind reactors need to get up and running close to their target dates, Huff said, "in order for anyone to have faith that a second or third or fourth one should be built."

European committee rejects Lilly's Alzheimer's drug

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A European regulatory committee rejected Eli Lilly's U.S.-approved Alzheimer's disease treatment over potentially dangerous risks of brain bleeding and swelling.

The European Medicines Agency committee said the benefits of the new drug, Kisunla, did not outweigh the risks, and it recommended refusing marketing authorization for it.

The agency's Committee for Medicinal Products for Human Use said Lilly can ask for a re-examination of its opinion.

Lilly said Friday that it hopes discussions about the drug continue with the agency through re-examination. The Indianapolis drugmaker noted that Kisunla has already been approved in Japan and China, among other markets.

U.S. regulators approved Kisunla last July for mild or early cases of dementia caused by the fatal, mind-robbing disease. That came a year after they approved a similar drug, Leqembi, from Japanese drugmaker Eisai.

The drugs are the first to show a delay in cognitive decline in patients, but it amounts to a matter of months.

The European committee also said last summer that Leqembi should not receive marketing authorization due to some of the same concerns. But it reversed its decision a few months later.

Both Kisunla and Leqembi are laboratory-made antibodies, administered by IV, that target one contributor to Alzheimer's — sticky amyloid plaque buildup in the brain. Questions remain about which patients should get the drugs and how long they might benefit.

Shares of Eli Lilly and Co. climbed more than $2 to $823.99 Friday morning

DNR OKs retaining wall for INDOT slide repairs on SR 56

BY THE COURIER STAFF
Approval was granted Monday by the Indiana Department of Natural Resources for a retaining wall to make needed slide repairs on State Road 56 approximately 4.6 miles east of Madison. A road closure was issued last Thursday, between North Bee Camp Road and North Shirks Hollow Road near Brooksborg, requiring motorists to take alternate routes between Madison and Vevay with the road remaining closed until traffic signals can be installed for one lane passage. Approval was granted Monday to the Indiana Department of Transportation by Amanda McCollum, Division of Water from the DNR, for construction a 12-foot-high by 324-foot-long retaining wall on the south side of State Road 56 within the Ohio River floodway. The project will include replacement of the pavement and guardrails and an existing 36-foot corrugated metal pipe will be replaced with a 4-foot by 3-foot reinforced concrete box culvert outside of the floodway. No trees will be cleared within the floodway. INDOT asks motorists to detour the area utilizing State Road 56 to State Road 101 to U.S. 42 into Kentucky to KY 36 to U.S. 421 while the closure is in place.

Former city hall destroyed by fire in Carrollton

BY MARK CAMPBELL
A building that served for many years as Carrollton City Hall and the business offices for the city-owned Carrollton Utilities Company was destroyed Friday by a fire that was reported at about 9 a.m. According to Carrollton Fire Chief Robert Hofmann, the structure, located at Sixth and Sycamore streets, was unoccupied at the time of the fire. A passerby reported seeing smoke coming from an eave at the rear of the structure at about 9:20 a.m. and by the time firefighters arrived “light smoke was coming from all eaves of the structure. The fire then progressed rapidly.” Hofmann said firefighters entered the building and determined the fire was in the second floor/attic area of the building. “We tried to make a push inside and we got to the second floor, but it was fully involved and we had to call it and get everybody out safely,” he said. There were no injuries but a couple of firefighters were overcome by heat and smoke and treated at the scene with oxygen. Hofmann said battling the fire was made difficult by the construction of the building and Friday’s gusty wind conditions. He said the building, which was shared by the city’s municipal offices and city’s utility company many years ago, had been used as a base for PEAK, the natural gas purchasing entity for Carrollton and other municipally owned utilities, since city hall and Carrollton Utilities began relocating to new facilities on Clay Street in 2000. The second floor was essentially an attic that was converted to provide additional space for Carrollton Utilities Company as an upstairs engineering room with a flat tar roof overtop. With the building gutted and the roof collapsing, a backhoe was brought in at the front of the building to help tear down and expose the burning roof and provide better access to water hoses while a ladder truck attacked the blaze from the rear of the structure. “When you’re fighting a fire with a ladder truck it’s not a good thing,” Hoffmann said of the total loss. yet known and based on the destruction it may be difficult to determine. Firefighters were on the scene for several hours and came back later Friday night to check for hot spots. Firefighters from Carrollton, Westside and Ghent fire company responded to the call — about 14 volunteers total — with crowd and traffic control by Carrollton Police Department and the Carroll County Sheriffs Office, equipment support by the Carrollton Street Department and emergency support by the Carroll County Emergency Medical Services. Hofmann said firefighters, using the radio repeater at Butler Park, had no issues with communication at the scene or in summoning volunteers from the three responding departments under their auto aide agreement. The county had lost its main antenna tower a week earlier and has been reconfiguring its communications system since in an effort to work around that problem until permanent repairs can be made.

Carrollton police chief recognized for saving life

BY PAXTON MEDIA GROUP
The Clifty Creek Chapter of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution recently honored Carrollton Police Chief Michael Willhoite with one of its highest awards — the Life Saving Medal — recognizing extraordinary acts that preserve human life. Willhoite’s sons, Coy and Quinn, are members of the Clifty Creek Chapter through their grandfather, Marvin Eades, of Madison. As Coy introduced his father to the chapter, he recounted the harrowing night that led to this recognition. In October 2024, Chief Willhoite was among the first responders to a devastating house fire just before daybreak in Carrollton. A young woman inside had called 911, desperate for help, believing she was near a door but unable to escape. Without hesitation and with no regard for his own safety, Willhoite rushed toward the burning home. He and fellow Carrollton Police officer Ron Dickow first attempted to enter the home through the front door, but the flames were too intense. Moving to the back, Dickow was quickly overcome by thick smoke, leaving Willhoite to act alone. Kicking in the door, he dropped to his hands and knees, crawling blindly through the smoke. Near the entrance, he felt two unmoving figures. One was a small child — her mother had managed to get her to the door but could go no further. Willhoite pulled the four-year-old girl from the inferno, carrying her to safety. Tragically, her mother, grandmother, and two uncles did not survive. “My father, Mike Willhoite, performed one of the most heroic acts a human can do,” Coy Willhoite told the SAR Chapter as he introduced his father and shared the story that led to his nomination and awarding of the Life Saving Medal. “I could not begin to imagine what it felt like to be there in that moment, or what it felt like to jump into harm’s way to save that little girl. My dad is more than deserving of the award that will be presented to him tonight, and I say that with 100% confidence. I could not begin to describe how truly proud I am to call you my dad.” Though born from tragedy, the bond between Willhoite and the child he saved will remain a powerful testament to courage, sacrifice, and the enduring impact of a single act of bravery. Willhoite is just the second person in the 10-year history of the Clifty Creek chapter to be awarded the Life Saving Award. Savannah Steele, a Jac-Cen-Del High School sophomore who helped save the lives of two classmates by performing the Heimlich Maneuver, was recognized in 2023.

Madison pulls away late to knock off Southwestern in softball opener

BY DAVID CAMPBELL
It took a few innings, but Madison softball found its offensive groove and pulled away for a 14-4 win over visiting Southwestern in the season opener for both teams on Friday.
Southwestern actually took a 3-2 lead into the third inning as pitcher Chloey Leach kept the Cubs at bay and the Rebels were manufacturing runs against Madison ace Ava Armbrecht.
But that all changed in the third as the Cubs began to hit the ball and errors piled up on the Southwestern side. Madison was able to end the game an inning early on the mercy rule.
“We were looking forward to opening day and just hoping that we were aggressive on the bases, at the plate and in the field, because that’s what we’ve been talking about. That’s been our mindset,” said Madison coach Devin Brierly, who was making her coaching debut with the team. “So we saw the aggressiveness from the kids and it feels good that we came out here and played the way that we want to play.”

Southwestern’s Chloey Leach (28) celebrates with teammate Jenna Owens after Owens scored in the Rebels’ loss at Madison on Friday.

Early on, it was Southwestern that was the aggressor. Armbrecht struck out the first three batters of the game for Madison, but that third batter — Leach — reached on a third-strike passed ball which opened the door for the Rebels. Rorie Scroggins followed with a single, Nataley Morrison walked and Baleigh McAfee drove in two runs with a single to center for a 2-0 lead.

Madison came right back in the bottom of the first with that aggressiveness that Brierly wanted to see. Lexi Douglas laid down a leadoff bunt and ended up scoring on the four-base error when the throw to first was overthrown and went all the way to the outfield fence. A batter later, Kyra Ayler tripled to the fence and scored on Armbrecht’s ground out to tie the game.
Southwestern (0-1) went back on top in the second when Jenna Owens singled and Riley Crawford lashed an RBI-triple for a lead that held up until the bottom of the third when Madison erupted.
The Cubs scored five runs in the third inning to go up 7-3 and added two more runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth to take a commanding lead. Madison then ended the game in the sixth.

Despite the lopsided final score, Southwestern coach Paula Fulton was thrilled with the way her team played, especially so early in the season.
“They have put the work in. I’m very proud of them. This team is going to surprise some people,” Fulton said. “We gave (Madison) three good innings, and they’re a solid team. Hat’s off to them. They played a heck of a ball game. Chloey’s got to get her legs under her. Asking her to pitch a complete game is a lot, especially against the team that can hit the ball. We made some mistakes that a couple weeks from now, we’ll make those routine.”

Miss Madison Racing names Holt as crew chief

BY THE COURIER STAFF
Longtime Miss Madison Racing crew-member Trey Holt has been named crew chief for the upcoming season, the team announced on Monday.
A native of Madison, Holt has been with the team since 2017 and former crew chiefs Dan Hoover and Mike Hanson have been grooming Holt for the position. On Monday, he officially took over for Hanson.
“This new role as crew chief is definitely going to be a learning curve,” Holt said in a release. “But I’ve learned a lot since I was 14, starting with vintage boats and working my way up with Miss Madison. I’m looking forward to the challenge of leading a crew, teaching new members and doing things the Madison way. I’ve always been told if you have a good crew around you, anything is possible, and I believe that.”

Now 27, Holt becomes one of the youngest crew chiefs in modern Unlimited hydroplane history. His racing career began when he was 14, helping Dave Johnson work on vintage boats at his shop on First Street. It was while working with Johnson that he caught the eye of Hoover, who invited Holt to travel with the team.
Holt has held a series of positions with Miss Madison Racing, the latest being the Boat Lead, with his primary responsibilities being with the engine and gearboxes.
“Trey’s passion and work ethic speak for themselves,” Miss Madison Chairman Kyle Bipes said. “He’s grown up with this sport, and he’s earned the respect of everyone in the pits. We’re excited to see him take the next step as a leader. The future is bright for Miss Madison with Trey at the helm.”

Holt is just the latest in a series of changes for the Miss Madison team since winning its 12th National High Points Championship last fall. The team sold its existing equipment and Holt will be working to get the 1989/1998-vintage former Miss Budweiser T-3 hull ready to race in the season opener at Guntersville, Alabama, June 5-7. Rookie Brandon Kennedy will drive the boat.
Holt lives in Madison with his wife, Abigail, their son, Neyland, and is expecting a second child soon.

Madison runners compete at Indiana Indoor finals

BY THE COURIER STAFF
Madison’s distance medley relay team finished ninth in the Small School division of the Indiana Indoor Track & Field State Finals Saturday in Indianapolis.
The quartet of Will Laufer, Eli Storm, Mason Davis and Travis Hoffman crossed the line in 11:04.68. That time beat their old school-record time by 12 seconds.
“They had a great race. This sets the bar for outdoor season and what we can do,” Madison coach Scott Holcroft said. “We will take this and grow from the results.”
“Not quite the results we were looking for, but many positives to take away from learning and experience,” Madison distance coach Kris Sandlin said. “Their finish puts them 40th in the state. What a great honor this early in the season.”
Madison opens the outdoor season on Thursday, April 10.

CARROLL’S MILLER GETS WIN
Carroll County’s Macie Miller picked up a win the girls’ 100-meter hurdles in the Owen County Invitational on Saturday.
Miller raced to victory in a time of 18.82. She was also second in the high jump at 4 feet, 4 inches.
Other top finishes for the Carroll girls were: Amabell Tamzin, third, shot put, 26-7 and fourth, discus, 73-2; 800 relay, fourth, 2:37.39; Adree Dermon, fifth, 100 dash, 14.00 and fifth, 400 dash, 1:10.48; 400 relay, fifth, 1:12.16; Angel Harney, 11th, 400 dash, 1:35.17; and Lydia Risk, 11th, 1600 run, 8:15.60.
Top finishes for the Carroll boys were: Aiden Lilley, third, 300 hurdles, 46.85; 400 relay, third, 50.81; 1600 relay, third, 4:19.16; Alex Bolton, fourth, 1600 run, 5:16.31; 800 relay, fourth, 1:45.01; Case Dermon, fourth, discus, 97-4 and ninth, shot put, 33-0; and Taylor Harsin, fifth, 3200 run, 13:26.93.
Carroll’s girls scored 37 points to place fourth as a team while the boys were fifth with 32 points. Mercer County won both team titles, scoring 155 points in the girls meet and 181 in the boys.
Carroll County hosts all-comers, including Trimble County, on Thursday.

Uzan’s late bucket off inbounds sends Houston over Purdue 62-60

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Houston spent time this week practicing an inbound play that coach Kelvin Sampson thought his team might need against Purdue.

Milos Uzan, the third option, ran it to perfection.

He tossed the ball to Joseph Tugler, who threw a bounce pass right back to Uzan, and the 6-foot-4 guard soared to the rim for an uncontested layup with 0.9 seconds left, giving the top-seeded Cougars a 62-60 victory — and a matchup with second-seeded Tennessee on Sunday won by the Cougars 69-50 to advance to the Final Four.

“Great execution at a time we needed that,” said Sampson, who is a win away from making his third Final Four and his second with Houston in five years. “You never know when you’re going to need it.”

The Cougars (33-4) made only one other basket over the final eight minutes, wasted a 10-point lead and then missed two more shots in the final 5 seconds. A replay review with 2.2 seconds left confirmed Houston would keep the ball when it rolled out of bounds after the second miss.

Uzan took over from there.

“I was trying to hit (L.J. Cryer) and then JoJo just made a great read,” Uzan said. “He was able to draw two (defenders) and he just made a great play to hit me back.”

Houston advanced to the Elite Eight for the third time in five years after falling in the Sweet 16 as a top seed in the previous two editions of March Madness. It will take the nation’s longest winning streak, 16 games, into Sunday’s Midwest Region final.

The Cougars joined the other three No. 1 seeds in this year’s Elite Eight and did it at Lucas Oil Stadium, where their 2021 tourney run ended with a loss in the Final Four to eventual national champion Baylor.

They haven’t lost since Feb. 1.

Uzan scored 22 points and Emanuel Sharp had 17 as Houston survived an off night from leading scorer Cryer, who finished with five points on 2-of-13 shooting.

Houston still had to sweat out a half-court heave at the buzzer, but Braden Smith’s shot was well off the mark.

Fletcher Loyer scored 16 points, Trey Kaufman-Renn had 14 and Smith, the Big Ten player of the year, added seven points and 15 assists for fourth-seeded Purdue (24-12). Smith assisted on all 11 second-half baskets for last year’s national runner-up, which played in front of a friendly crowd about an hour’s drive from its campus in West Lafayette.

“I thought we fought really hard and we dug down defensively to get those stops to come back,” Smith said. “We did everything we could and we just had a little miscommunication at the end and they converted. Props to them.”

Houston appeared on the verge of disaster when Kaufman-Renn scored on a dunk and then blocked Cryer’s shot with 1:17 to go, leading to Camden Heide’s 3 that tied the score at 60 with 35 seconds left.

Sampson called timeout to set up the final play, but Uzan missed a turnaround jumper and Tugler’s tip-in rolled off the rim and out of bounds. The Cougars got one more chance after the replay review.

Sharp’s scoring flurry early in the second half finally gave Houston some separation after a back-and-forth first half. His 3-pointer at the 16:14 mark made it 40-32. After Purdue trimmed the deficit to four, Uzan made two 3s to give Houston a 10-point lead in a tough, physical game that set up a rare dramatic finish in this year’s tourney.

“Smith was guarding the inbounder, so he had to take JoJo,” Sampson said. “That means there was no one there to take Milos. That’s why you work on that stuff day after day.”

TAKEAWAYS

Purdue: Coach Matt Painter’s Boilermakers stumbled into March Madness with six losses in their final nine games but proved themselves a worthy competitor by fighting their way into the Sweet 16 and nearly taking down a No. 1 seed.

Houston: The Cougars lead the nation in 3-point percentage and scoring defense, an enviable combination.

SCARY FALL

Houston guard Mylik Wilson gave the Cougars a brief scare with 13:23 left in the game. He leapt high into the air to grab a rebound and drew a foul on Kaufman-Renn.

As the play continued, Wilson was undercut and his body twisted around before he landed on his head. Wilson stayed down momentarily, rubbing his head, but eventually got up and remained in the game.

Defense carries Houston into 7th Final Four 69-50 over Tennessee

BY MICHAEL MAROT

INDIANAPOLIS — Houston’s relentless, harassing defense had Tennessee’s shooters dancing around.

Now, the Cougars are two-stepping it back to Texas.

L.J. Cryer finished with 17 points, Emanuel Sharp scored 14 of his 16 points in the second half and the nation’s stingiest defense delivered a historic NCAA Tournament performance, leading top-seeded Houston past second-seeded Tennessee 69-50 on Sunday for the Midwest Region title and its seventh trip to the Final Four.

Next up is Cooper Flagg and five-time national champion Duke on Saturday in San Antonio, just a 3 1/2-hour drive from Houston’s campus. First, the Cougars wanted to savor the journey they took to this net-cutting celebration, one that failed to materialize each of the past two seasons when they were eliminated in the Sweet 16 as a

No. 1 seed.

“It’s a good feeling knowing what we’ve been through,” Sharp, the region’s most outstanding player, said of Houston’s first Final Four appearance since 2021. “A lot of people doubted us.”

The Cougars (34-4) broke the school’s single-season record for wins, extended the nation’s longest active winning streak to 17 games and gave coach Kelvin Sampson a third chance to reach his first national championship game.

Houston has played on college basketball’s biggest stage twice, losing title games in 1983 to N.C. State and in 1984 to Georgetown during the Phi Slama Jama era.

They’re back this time thanks to Sharp, who made two of his four 3-pointers in quick succession to thwart a second-half charge from Tennessee.

Chaz Lanier and Jordan Gainey scored 17 points apiece for the Volunteers (30-8), who again fell short of the program’s first Final Four appearance. Coach Rick Barnes’ team was also eliminated in a regional final last year.

FAMILIAR FORMULA

The nation’s top scoring defense held the Vols to 15 first-half points, the fewest in an Elite Eight game since 1979. It was also the lowest first-half scoring total by any No. 1 or No. 2 seed in a tourney game since seeding began that same year.

“I feel like we always want to throw the first punch,” said Milos Uzan, who scored four points after making the decisive basket against Purdue. “Emanuel was able to get a jump ball early. I feel like that shook those guys up a little bit and it was super important to keep our foot on their neck.”

The Cougars stayed locked in even when the Vols could have cut the deficit to single digits in the second half. The nation’s top 3-point shooting team quickly extended the margin back to 17.

Vols avenge regular season losses, oust UK 78-65

INDIANAPOLIS — Those two regular-season losses to Kentucky don’t mean anything to Tennessee now.

The Volunteers avenged them in convincing fashion on the big stage of the NCAA Tournament on Friday night, posting a no-doubt 78-65 victory that sent them to a second consecutive Elite Eight.

Zakai Zeigler had 18 points and 10 assists, and Tennessee outhustled and outplayed Kentucky on both ends of the court. The second-seeded Vols (30-8) beat their border rival in the first all-Southeastern Conference Sweet 16 matchup since 1986 before being routed 69-50 by No. 1 seed Houston (34-4) on Sunday in the Midwest Region final.

“We really wanted to set the tone and show them who we were,” Zeigler said. “The first two times we played them at their place and our place. We knew regardless of what happened, we were going to go out and play Tennessee basketball on the offensive and defensive end, and I feel like we did that great tonight.”

No one enjoyed the show at Lucas Oil Stadium more than Peyton Manning, who was back in the town where he spent 13 years and won a Super Bowl with the Indianapolis Colts. The Vols’ most famous sports alum was in a bright orange ballcap seated behind the bench as Tennessee ran off with the win in the “House Peyton Built.”

Lamont Butler scored 18 points to lead first-year coach Mark Pope’s third-seeded Wildcats (24-12), who were held 20 points under their season scoring average. Their 65 points matched their fewest in a game this season.

“Congratulations to Tennessee. They played really hard and really well. I have a ton of respect for coach (Rick) Barnes. Mostly, we’re just sad that this is over.”

The Vols did what they failed to do in their first two meetings with Kentucky, when they lost 78-73 at home and 75-64 in Lexington. They’ve been one of the best in the nation at defending the 3-pointer, yet the Wildcats shot 12 of 24 on 3s in each of those games.

It was apparent early the Vols weren’t going to let the Wildcats put up 3s at will again. Kentucky finished 6 of 15 from distance.

The Vols were in full control by the middle of the first half, using relentless defense and attacking the glass to generate offense and build a 19-point lead.

They scored 13 second-chance points off nine offensive rebounds on their way to a 43-28 lead at the half, only the second time Kentucky has been held under 30 points in a first half this season. Barnes is now 15-0 in the NCAA Tournament when up by 10 or more at halftime.

The Vols picked up where they left off at the start the second half, forcing a shot-clock violation and an airball 3 by Koby Brea on Kentucky’s first two possessions. Their effort on the boards continued, too. They finished with 19 points on 14 offensive rebounds.

The Vols all but finished off the victory with under nine minutes to play after Butler cut the lead to 12. Felix Okpara chased down his missed shot and dunked it, and Lanier made a steal and passed to Ziegler. The 5-foot-9 Zeigler hit a 3 from the wing and then looked up and held a stare at the 6-10 Brandon Garrison, who was the nearest defender.

“It felt like we were playing Tennessee basketball, playing aggressive, playing smart all-around,” Okpara said.

TAKEAWAYS

Kentucky: The Wildcats maxed out — some would say overachieved — in Pope’s first season. They returned no production from a year ago. Pope brought in nine transfers and they led Kentucky to the second weekend of the tournament for the first time since 2019.

Tennessee: The Vols are one win away from reaching the Final Four for the first time. While they’ve built a reputation as one of the nation’s top defensive teams, their offense can’t be overlooked. They shot 51% from the field against Kentucky and are getting big contributions from sixth man Gainey.

KENTUCKY’S INDY WOES CONTINUE

This was the fourth time in 11 years the Wildcats took a big loss in Indianapolis.

In 2015, they took a 38-0 record into their Final Four matchup at Lucas Oil Stadium and lost 71-64 to Wisconsin. They began the 2018-19 season with a 118-84 loss to Duke in a top-five matchup at nearby Gainbridge Fieldhouse, and three years later they lost their NCAA Tournament opener to No. 15 seed Saint Peter’s 85-79 in overtime at Gainbridge.

GOOD VIBES FOR VOLS

The Vols are having lots of fun in Indianapolis, on and off the court. Los Angeles Lakers rookie Dalton Knecht, who played at Tennessee, got the team into a Gainbridge Fieldhouse suite to watch Wednesday’s game against the Indiana Pacers. And then they had Manning — there’s a statue of him outside Lucas Oil Stadium — cheering them on.

MADISON

Armbrecht struggled early but hit her groove late and struck out 15 batters while walking just three over six innings in the circle. Only two of the four runs scored against her were earned.

“Obviously, it’s opening day and you’ve got to get into the groove. You got to settle in a little bit,” Brierly said. “I didn’t have any worries at all. When we got into a tight spot here, her teammates did a good job of picking her up and she did a great job at staying mentally strong on the mound and not letting that get her down.”

Ayler went 4-for-4 with an RBI and four runs scored for Madison, Emily Laufer was 3-for-4 with two doubles and three runs scored, Lanie Alexander was 2-for-4 with a rocket of a home run and two RBIs, Armbrecht had two hits and four RBIs, Sarah Adams had a single, a double and an RBI and Kylie Montgomery went 2-for-3 with a double and a run scored.

Only four of the 14 runs allowed by Leach were earned and she struck out five while not walking a batter. McAfee had two hits and two RBIs for the Trimble no-hit twice in two losses to Henry Co.

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Henry County's pitchers tossed a pair of no-hitters to sweep Trimble County in a two-game series late last week.

The Wildcats scored a 15-0 win in Bedford on Thursday then posted a 10-0 win in New Castle on Saturday.

Henry County scored 12 runs in the fifth inning to blow open Thursday's game and roll to the win. Wildcat pitcher Nicholas Bryan struck out 11 and walked one in five innings while holding the Raiders hitless. Liam Taylor drew a walk for Trimble's lone baserunner.

Trevor Lile allowed eight runs in an inning and two-thirds of relief for the loss.

Henry scored four runs in the first and five in the fifth to win Saturday's game. Jaylan Hortenbury had 11 strikeouts and walked one for the five-inning no-hitter. Dylan Penick drew the walk.

Nolan Hunt gave up four earned runs in two and two-thirds innings for the loss.

Trimble, now 2-5 on the season, will host either Williamstown or Eminence in the semifinals of the All "A" Classic Eighth Region Tournament on Tuesday. The championship game is on Wednesday.

CARROLL GOES 3-1 ON THE WEEK

Carroll County baseball won three of the four games it played over a busy three days late in the week.

On Thursday, the Panthers swept Gallatin County in a doubleheader, winning 10-0 and 20-1, then on Friday Carroll posted a 5-3 win over Bellevue. The Panthers then suffered a 10-6 loss at home to Anderson County

Taylor went 2-for-2 with a double, two RBIs and two runs scored for the Panthers against Anderson, and Wilson and Shovlin each had two hits and an RBI. Ogden pitched four and two-thirds innings in relief and took the loss.

Carroll, now 4-3 on the season, hosts Switzerland County on Wednesday, travels to Boone County on Thursday and heads to Villa Madonna on Saturday.

HS SOFTBALL ROUNDUP

Trimble swept by Henry, beats Shelby

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Trimble County's softball team sandwiched a pair of losses to Henry County round a win over Shelby County late last week.

On Thursday, Trimble suffered a 12-4 loss to Henry County but regrouped to beat Shelby County 22-8 on Friday. On Saturday, the Raiders fell 4-2 at Henry County.

Henry County scored five runs in the second inning and four more in the third to blow open the game on Thursday. The LadyCats finished with 17 hits.

Savannah Oldson went 3-for-3 with two RBIs to lead Trimble while Alyssa Ritchie had a double and an RBI and Shelby Wright had a double and scored a run. Hannah Chilton added a single and an RBI.

Ritchie was chased after one inning and suffered the loss allowing five earned runs on seven hits.

Trimble bashed out 22 hits and rolled over Shelby County 22-8 on Friday on the road. Jocie Stucker went 5-for-6 with three doubles, five RBIs and four runs scored for the Raiders, Chilton had three hits, three RBIs and four runs, Jayleigh Willis had three hits, three RBIs and two runs, Oldson had three hits and scored four runs, Ritchie was 2-for-5 with a triple and three RBIs, Wright and Alana Washington each had two hits and an RBI, and Jaelynn Holbrook had a triple and two RBIs.

Ritchie gave up eight runs in six innings with six strikeouts for the win.

Henry County scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth to pick up the 4-2 win over Trimble County on Saturday at home. Washington had a triple and an RBI for the Raiders, Lily Truman had a hit and drove in a run, Oldson had a hit and scored a run and Holbrook had a hit.

Ritchie pitched well enough to win, giving up three earned runs on seven hits in six innings in the circle with a strikeout.

Trimble, now 4-2 on the season, heads to Williamstown on Tuesday for the semifinals of the All "A" Classic Eighth Region Tournament where the Raiders will play the host Demons. The championship game is set for Wednesday.

Carroll had 15 hits in the win over Dixie Heights on Saturday. Couch went 4-for-5 with two RBIs and four runs scored, Audrey Carli was 3-for-4 with a double and two runs, Coghill was 3-for-3 with a double and an RBI, and Rose had two hits and drove in three runs.

Rose struck out 10 in eight innings and walked one batter for the win.

Carroll, now 5-1 on the season, travels to Bellevue on Tuesday and hosts Shelby County on Thursday before hosting Collins on Saturday.

HANOVER ROUNDUP

Panthers open HCAC softball season by sweeping Bluffton

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover College softball scored a doubleheader sweep of Bluffton at home on Saturday in the Panthers' Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference opener.

Hanover posted a 7-2 win in the first game and 11-3 in game two.

Former Southwestern Rebel Ashley Fulton had a huge game at the plate, going 3-for-4 with a double, a triple, two RBIs and two runs scored for Hanover. Meghan Mader went 3-for-4 with a home run and two RBIs and LauRie Harmless was 3-for-4 with an RBI.

Lauren Beaman pitched all seven innings with five strikeouts for the win.

Harmless went 2-for-3 with a home run and three RBIs to lead Hanover in game two while Beaman was 2-for-3 with a double and three RBIs and Fulton had a hit and an RBI. Lulu Van Beek gave up three runs in five innings for the win.

Hanover split a doubleheader with Spalding on Thursday, winning the first game 7-1 and falling 9-5 in game two.

Cunagin went 2-for-3 with a double and two RBIs and Fulton and Harmless each had a double and an RBI. Beaman allowed one run in seven innings for the win.

Olivia Planck was 2-for-2 with a double and an RBI in the game two loss, Cunagin had two hits and an RBI and Fulton had a hit and scored a run. Van Beek took the loss in the circle.

Hanover, now 6-10 overall and 2-0 in the HCAC, travels to Earlham for two games on Saturday.

BASEBALL WINS SERIES OVER MSJ

Hanover baseball won two of three to take the weekend series at home over Mount St. Joseph.

The Panther won the opener 11-9 on Friday, then split a doubleheader on Saturday, losing 7-3 in game one and winning 8-2 in game two.

Reid Douglas each had two hits with a home run and Jake Danneman had three hits and two RBIs in the game one win on Friday. John Girard gave up six earned runs in seven innings for the win while Simpson pitched the final inning and a third for the save.

Trevor Jones had two hits and an RBI and Sam Perkins had a double and an RBI in the first game on Saturday. Chris Hautman allowed seven runs in six innings and took the loss.

Nickey Gutzwiller had four hits and Douglas went 3-for-5 with a home run and a double in the second game win on Saturday. Wyatt Colvin got the win in relief and Simpson got the save.

Hanover, now 8-13 overall and 4-3 in the HCAC, travels to Spalding on Wednesday and heads to Rose-Hulman this weekend.

WOMEN'S GOLF COMPETES AT ROSE

Hanover women's golf competed in the Rose-Hulman Intercollegiate meet over the weekend.

Only two Panthers played in the event. Taylor Caldwell placed 15th with a two-round 165 and Madelyn Arrenholz was 27th with a 181.

Hanover competes in the French Lick Classic this weekend.

WOMEN'S TENNIS FALLS TO TRANSY

Hanover women's tennis suffered a 7-0 loss at home to Transylvania on Saturday. Matches against Franklin on Thursday and Huntington on Saturday were postponed.

Hanover, now 3-4 overall and 2-2 in the HCAC, travels to Earlham on Saturday.

Clayton Jr. rallies Gators into Final Four 84-79

BY JOSH DUBOW
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — Coach Todd Golden cut the final strand of the net, waved it to the crowd and performed the famed Gator Chomp.

A celebration that seemed completely improbable just a few minutes earlier was in high gear. Florida is heading back to the Final Four.

Walter Clayton Jr. rescued top-seeded Florida with two late 3-pointers, and the Gators rallied from nine points down late to beat Texas Tech 84-79 in the NCAA Tournament's West Region final on Saturday.

"It goes to show how together we all are," Clayton said. "Many times could easily just break, start pointing the finger, blaming each other for this and that. But we just stayed together through the end and stayed the course. And thankfully we got it done today."

The Gators (34-4) trailed 75-66 with less than three minutes to play before staging a furious rally against the third-seeded Red Raiders (28-9), who had done the same in the Sweet 16 against Arkansas.

Clayton dribbled out of the paint and hit a fade-away 3 with 59 seconds left to give Florida a 78-77 lead, and the Gators held on from there to advance to their first Final Four since 2014 in Golden's third season. Florida will face the South Region champion — either Auburn or Michigan State — next Saturday in San Antonio.

"There's not another player in America you would rather have right now than Walter Clayton with the ball in his hands in a big-time moment," Golden said. "The biggest thing in those moments is you need to have somebody that wants to take those shots. They're obviously difficult plays, but someone that has the confidence to step up and make incredible individual plays. Walter did that for us tonight."

The comeback provided a happy ending to Golden's return to the Bay Area, where he played in college at Saint Mary's and got his start as a head coach at San Francisco.

As the final horn sounded, Golden turned to the Gators fans and demonstrably pumped his fist as his players rushed out to the court to celebrate.

"It's crazy," forward Thomas Haugh said. "I feel like I'm dreaming. I was watching the round of 64 in the eighth grade sneaking my phone into science class watching it. Now to say I'm playing in the Final Four is wild. It's wild."

Clayton, who began his college career at Iona, scored 30 points to lead the Gators. Thomas Haugh added 20 points and 11 rebounds off the bench, including the two 3-pointers that started the comeback.

Clayton then tied it with his shot from long range after Texas Tech missed a second straight front end of a one-and-one as Golden called for the Gators to foul early to prolong the game.

"It was a calculated decision we had to make at that point where we needed to get more possessions in the game and it worked out well for us," Golden said.

After Darrius Williams scored down low for Texas Tech, Clayton's last 3 put Florida ahead to stay, and the Gators sealed it at the foul line.

Francona has rough debut in Reds opener

BY JOE REEDY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Terry Francona’s first opening day as manager of the Cincinnati Reds started in a dentist’s chair.

About 12 hours later, Francona was experiencing baseball’s equivalent of a root canal.

The Reds were one out away from a successful debut for Francona, until the San Francisco Giants rallied for four runs in the ninth inning. Cincinnati got a run in the home half but ended up falling short 6-4.

Francona began the day with an emergency trip to the dentist for treatment of a broken veneer on a bottom tooth. As is his usual style, Francona tried to make light of the situation.

“Got it fixed and now I’m ready to go. I didn’t want to go through opening day looking like Jethro Bodine,” he said before the game.

That wasn’t the only painful experience for Francona. He then had to watch his team squander a lead in the ninth inning.

The Reds had a 3-2 lead going into the ninth when Francona decided to go with Ian Gibaut to close it out after Emilio Pagán pitched a scoreless seventh inning. Cincinnati’s closer situation remains in flux with Alexis Díaz on the injured list due to left hamstring inflammation.

With runners at the corners and two out, Patrick Bailey’s base hit to right-center tied it at 3-all before Wilmer Flores drove a hanging sweeper into the left-field stands to put the Giants on top.

“He left a breaking ball that caught too much of the plate. It was the middle of the order and he had a lot of deep counts,” said Francona about Gibaut.

The decision to go with Gibaut, who has 10 blown saves and only four career saves after Thursday, had Reds fans instantly second-guessing Francona.

“I don’t know if I’m ever going to go check to see who’s surprised,” said Francona about reactions to his decisions. “What I do is do what I think is right, answer questions and be confident enough to move on and not run to see how I’m being perceived. I’ll never do that.

“I think it’s OK to kind of know who you are. We can’t be the team where we throw the bats and balls out there and think we’re going to win. We’re going to have to scrap our (butts) off. That’s OK. I can enjoy that.”

The ninth inning implosion dampened what had been a good day for the Reds. Jeimer Candelario had a pair of hits and drove in three runs.

Cincinnati pitchers combined for 16 strikeouts. It is the second-most the Reds have had on opening day, with a record 17 against the Los Angeles Angels in 2013.

Starter Hunter Greene — who allowed two runs struck out eight in five innings — also defended Gibaut and went to his locker to talk to him before doing a postgame interview.

“He’s one of our best pitchers. Fans might not want to hear it. But they need to believe it because it is true,” Greene said. “I want him to know that I support him and I look past what happened today. And I know the rest of the team feels that way about Ian as well.”

As he had in previous managerial jobs with Philadelphia, Boston and Cleveland, Francona tried to emphasize the point that what happens in the opener isn’t always a harbinger of what will take place the entire season.

“It better not deflate us too much. It’s no fun losing any way. Losing late is hard. If that is too much for us, I got the wrong read on our guys,” Francona said. “I get more excited to get into the grind of the season. The bad thing is tomorrow we have a day off where we sit through it.”

Francona is back managing after taking last year off, but that didn’t make this opening day special compared to the past ones. During last year’s opening day, Francona was in Los Angeles watching Arizona in the NCAA Men’s Basketball Tournament.

“I think, every day is special. I mean, it can be June 30th. I like coming to the ballpark. I was glad I didn’t last year because I needed to get away. Like I told these guys, when you know you need to get away, you’re probably late doing it. But it helped me along the way.”

Torpedo-shaped bats draw attention after Yankees blast team-record 9 homers

BY LARRY FLEISHER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — New torpedo bats drew attention when the New York Yankees hit a team-record nine homers that traveled a combined 3,695 feet on Saturday.

Using a strikingly different model in which wood is moved lower down the barrel after the label and shapes the end a little like a bowling pin, Paul Goldschmidt, Cody Bellinger, Austin Wells, Anthony Volpe and Jazz Chisholm Jr. homered in New York’s 20-9 rout of the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Yankees hit four more homers in a 12-3 win Sunday and their 15 homers through the first three games matched the 2006 Detroit Tigers for the most in major league history.

“That’s just trying to be the best we can be,” manager Aaron Boone said Sunday. “That’s one of the things that’s gotten pointed out. I say to you guys all the time, we’re trying to win on the margins and that shows up in so many different ways.”

MLB has relatively uncomplicated bat rules, stating under 3.02: “The bat shall be a smooth, round stick not more than 2.61 inches in diameter at the thickest part and not more than 42 inches in length. The bat shall be one piece of solid wood.” It goes on to state there may be a cupped indentation up to 1 1/4 inches in depth, 2 inches wide and with at least a 1-inch diameter, and experimental models must be approved by MLB.

Former Yankees infielder Kevin Smith posted online Saturday that Aaron Lehardt, a former Yankees front-office staffer who now works for the Miami Marlins, developed the torpedo barrel to bring more mass to a bat’s sweet spot.

“You’re going up with a weapon that can be better,” Smith wrote. “Your just misses could be clips, your clips could be flares, and your flares could (be) barrels. And it was true, it’s fractions of an inch on the barrel differentiating these outcomes.”

Goldschmidt, batting lead-off for the first time, opened with a 413-foot homer off Nestor Cortes and Bellinger followed with a 451-foot drive that initially didn’t register with Statcast. Aaron Judge, using a bat with a conventional shape, hit a 468-foot shot that made the Yankees the first team to homer on each of a game’s first three pitches since MLB’s records began in 1988.

Bellinger first was presented with the torpedo-shape concept in a batting practice session last season with the Chicago Cubs but did not use it in a game. He was given a more advanced version during spring training this year.

“I started swinging this one in spring or before spring, kind of early on, and I was like, ‘Oh it feels good,’” Bellinger said. “It was an ounce lighter than the one I was swinging, but I think the way the weight was distributed felt really good.”

Bellinger, the 2019 NL MVP with the Los Angeles Dodgers, switched from a maple Louisville Slugger to a birch bat and cited MLB’s 2010 rule change narrowing the maximum diameter from 2.75 inches.

“I’m usually a maple guy, but birch for me allows me to get the bigger barrel because I wasn’t grandfathered in,” Bellinger said. “So it’s all within regulation. They made sure that before the season even started, knowing that I imagine at some point the way these bats look that it’s probably going to get out at some point.”

Volpe, who homered for the second straight game Saturday, began using the torpedo in spring training.

“The concept makes so much sense. I know I’m bought in,” Volpe said. “The bigger you can have the barrel where you hit the ball, it makes sense to me.”

Chisholm homered twice Sunday, hitting behind Judge for the second straight day. He said he started using the torpedo bat after hitting a double and a homer in spring training with Volpe’s bat.

“I love my bat,” Chisholm said with a slight laugh. “I think you can tell. It doesn’t feel like a different bat. It just helps you in a real way I guess.”

Judge, who hit an AL-record 62 homers in 2022 and 58 last year en route to his second AL MVP award, didn’t see a reason to experiment.

“The past couple of seasons kind of speak for itself,” Judge said a day after his third career three-homer game. “Why try to change something?”

Milwaukee manager Pat Murphy said he knows a little about developing and bat designs from serving on the boards of two bat companies.

“Players are doing everything to try to get an edge today legally and I think they should,” Murphy said. “I think whatever is good for the offensive game is good for the game.”

Reds spoil Verlander’s debut with Giants 3-2

CINCINNATI — Christian Encarnacion-Strand hit a go-ahead solo homer, Matt McLain had two extra-base hits and an RBI and the Cincinnati Reds spoiled the San Francisco debut of three-time Cy Young Award winner Justin Verlander on Saturday, beating the Giants 3-2.

McLain, who missed the entire 2024 season with a shoulder injury, got the Reds on the board with a solo homer in the third inning and scored from second base on an RBI single by Elly De La Cruz in the fifth, tying the game at 2.

Reds left-hander Nick Lodolo (1-0) allowed two runs on five hits in six innings. He finished with one strikeout and settled in, forcing a number of groundouts.

Two days after losing the season opener due to shaky relief pitching, Tony Santillan, Graham Ashcraft and Emilio Pagán worked three scoreless innings to seal the win.

The 42-year-old Verlander, who signed a $15 million, one-year contract with the Giants in January, struck out five, walked one, allowed two runs and six hits in five innings. Aside from McLain’s solo homer, Verlander kept the Reds in check until the fifth inning, when McLain and De La Cruz had back-to-back hits and tied the score.

San Francisco’s Spencer Bivens (0-1) took the loss.

Like McLain, Encarnacion-Strand’s 2024 season was defined by injuries. Encarnacion-Strand missed nearly all of last season with a wrist injury, but the first base slugger has four hits in eight at-bats in 2025.

out of the inning.

GIANTS 6, REDS 3

Matt Chapman hit a two-run homer and Heliot Ramos homered for the second time in the series as the San Francisco Giants beat the Cincinnati Reds 6-3 on Sunday.

It was a pitchers’ duel through the first five innings. Reds right-hander Nick Martinez (0-1) retired the first 13 batters before Ramos launched his 1-1 pitch into the left-field stands to put the Giants ahead 1-0.

Chapman’s two-run homer in the sixth made the score 4-0. Martinez allowed four earned runs with a walk and five strikeouts.

Giants right-hander Robbie Ray (1-0) had a perfect game through five innings, but things unraveled for him in the sixth.

Gavin Lux broke up the no-hitter when a leadoff single. Then Austin Wynn hit a two-run homer, his first of the season, and Matt McLain added a solo shot, his second, to make the score 4-3.

Ray retired one batter in the sixth before exiting after allowing three earned runs with a walk and four strikeouts.

Cincinnati had the tying run at the plate in the eighth. Santiago Espinal grounded to Chapman who tagged lead runner Jacob Hurubise then threw to first to complete an inning-ending double play.

Camilo Doval retired the Reds in order in the ninth for his first save.

KEY MOMENT

A diving play by McLain forced a ground out for the first out in the sixth, and a slick double play by McLain and De La Cruz got Lodolo

NCAA women: Top seeds South Carolina, UCLA reach Final Four

At least two No. 1 seeds will be in the Final Four of women's NCAA Tournament.

Two more could book trips to Tampa, Florida, on Monday.

South Carolina kept its repeat championship hopes alive and reached its fifth straight Final Four with a grinding 54-50 win over Duke on Sunday. The Gamecocks will face the winner between top-seeded Texas and TCU on Monday in their bid to become the first repeat NCAA champion since UConn's run of four straight from 2013-16.

UCLA followed that up with an impressive performance, knocking off third-seeded LSU 72-65 behind another big game by Lauren Betts. The 6-foot-7 All-American had 17 points, seven rebounds and six blocked shots despite sitting out the second quarter.

UCLA will face the winner of Monday's Elite Eight game between No. 1 seed Southern California and No. 2 seed UConn.

GAMES TO WATCH
Texas (34-3) vs. TCU (34-3), Birmingham, Alabama. Former Big 12 rivals will play for a spot in the Final Four. The Frogs are in the Elite Eight for the first time. Coach

Mark Campbell's "Under Frogs" went from having to hold open tryouts to find enough healthy players to the cusp of a Final Four behind the trio of Sedona Prince, Haley Van Lith and Madison Conner. Prince has been nearly unstoppable inside, the well-traveled Van Lith scored 26 points in a Sweet 16 win over Notre Dame, and Conner is shooting 45% from 3. The Frogs will need to click on all cylinders if they're going to beat the top-seeded Longhorns. Texas has one of the nation's best defenses and is holding NCAA Tournament opponents to 56 points per game. The Longhorns also have All-American Madison Booker. The 6-foot-1 forward was the Southeastern Conference player of the year and is averaging 16.4 points and 6.8 rebounds. She's part of a dominating front line that includes 6-4 Taylor Jones and 6-6 center Kyla Oldacre, so the Frogs will have their hands full inside.

USC (31-3) vs. UConn (34-3), Spokane, Washington. UConn All-American Paige Bueckers has been one of college basketball's best players during her time in Storrs, with the only missing part of her resume a national championship. The 6-foot guard has done her best to get that title, dominating throughout her final March Madness. She scored 34 points against South Dakota State in the second round and topped that with a career-high 40 in a Sweet 16 win over Oklahoma. USC will be without its best player, All-American JuJu Watkins. She suffered a season-ending knee injury against Mississippi State in the second round, but it didn't slow the Trojans in a Sweet 16 win over Kansas State. Freshman Kennedy

Smith stepped into the void left by Watkins, scoring 19 points in the 67-61 victory.

Gilgeous-Alexander scores 33 as Thunder roll Pacers 132-111

BY CLIFF BRUNT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

OKLAHOMA CITY — Shai Gilgeous-Alexander scored 33 points and the Oklahoma City Thunder routed the Indiana Pacers 132-111 on Saturday night for their ninth straight win.

Gilgeous-Alexander, the league's leading scorer, made 10 of 23 field goals and 10 of 12 free throws.

Lu Dort scored 22 points and made 6 of 7 3-pointers while Jalen Williams added 18 points for the Thunder.

Tyrese Haliburton had 18 points and Andrew Nembhard added 16 for the Pacers, who had won six of their previous seven games.

Oklahoma City dominated, even though forward/center Chet Holmgren sat out to manage the left hip injury he suffered early in the season. The Thunder now have a three-game lead on the Cleveland Cavaliers in the race for the league's best record and homecourt advantage throughout the playoffs with eight to play.

The Pacers entered Saturday fourth in the Eastern Conference standings and are trying to hold off the Detroit Pistons and Milwaukee Bucks to earn home-court advantage in the first round of the playoffs. The Pacers were coming off a 162-109 win against the Washington Wizards, but they couldn't duplicate the effort against a Thunder team with the league's best defensive rating.

TAKEAWAYS

Pacers: Indiana ran into the rare team that could handle playing at its break-neck pace. Even with the teams running and gunning, the Thunder shot 51.1% from the field and committed just nine turnovers.

Thunder: Oklahoma City took an in-game injury in stride. Isaiah Hartenstein left with left hip soreness and did not play in the second half. Oklahoma City outscored the Pacers 71-62 after the break.

KEY MOMENT

Oklahoma City's Isaiah Joe hit a pair of 3-pointers 45 seconds apart late in the third quarter. The second pushed the Thunder lead to 98-78.

KEY STAT

Gilgeous-Alexander made 6 of 18 shots the first three quarters, then made 4 of 5 in the fourth.

Ovechkin scores 890th career goal to stand 5 from record

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — For Alex Ovechkin, scoring the 890th goal of his career wasn't such a sweet moment; in fact, moving five goals away from breaking Wayne Gretzky's NHL record didn't matter much to the 39-year-old after an 8-5 loss at the hands of the Buffalo Sabres.

"Right now, we lost three in a row," Ovechkin said. "It's a good thing it happens right now and not in the playoffs, but we just have to bounce back and find a way to win the games."

Ovechkin scored at 9:11 of the third period, deflecting Rasmus Sandin's shot past James Reimer to pull Washington within two.

Though the Capitals were able to pull within one and seemed to kick their game into higher gear after his goal, the 39-year-old said it was Aliaksei Protas' short-handed tally at the start of the period that sparked the rally.

"When you score on the PK, it give you more (life) and you can see our bench getting after the game," Ovechkin said. "We tried to come back, but unfortunately, we can't."

He is now back on pace to pass Gretzky's mark of 894 that long seemed unapproachable this spring. He has 37 this season and is on track to reach 40 for a 14th time, also the most in league history, despite missing 16 games because of a broken left fibula.

"Again, it's insane number," Protas said. "I don't think I'd ever get that, even in NHL 25 (the video game) ... he's chasing something special."

Before capping off a three-point night in the third period, Ovechkin had found his ice time limited amid numerous defensive zone starts, penalty kills and an unsatisfactory effort from the top-six. He skated just 7:43 minutes through the first two periods, the lowest on the team, and finished the night with 16:22 minutes while moving to Pierre-Luc Dubois' line.

"We were fighting to stay in that game, I didn't like any of our top-six again tonight," coach Spencer Carbery said, adding, "It just hasn't looked great. Their underlying numbers haven't been great the last two games from our top-six."

Ovechkin will continue his pursuit of Gretzky on Tuesday when the Capitals head north to visit the Boston Bruins.

at-large picks by the NCAA selection committee. Selection Sunday unveiled the bracket matchups.

WHEN ARE THE GAMES?

First- and second-round games concluded Monday on campuses across the country. Sweet 16 weekend (March 28-31) put games at two sites once again: Birmingham, Alabama, and Spokane, Washington.

The Final Four is in Tampa on Friday, with the championship game next Sunday. A year ago, the championship game drew a bigger television audience than the men's title game for the first time, with an average of 18.9 million viewers watching undefeated South Carolina beat Iowa and superstar Caitlin Clark.

The US dominates figure skating's world championships

BY DAVE SKRETТА
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — It's hard to imagine a better world championships for the American figure skating team, which captured gold in three of the four disciplines over the weekend for the first time in its history, and will take all of that momentum into an Olympic year.

But there is an old rival potentially returning to the mix that wasn't at worlds: the Russians.

The country that has dominated Olympic figure skating over the past three-plus decades has been banned from competing in any international events since its 2022 invasion of Ukraine. Its best skaters have been forced to defect to other countries or, for those unwilling to do so, compete in a series of domestic events far outside of the global spotlight.

But late last year, the International Skating Union announced that it had developed a strict procedure whereby a small number of Russian athletes could qualify for the Milano-Cortina Games in February. The plan created at the recommendation of the International Olympic Committee involves Russia nominating a single athlete or pair in each of the disciplines to compete in a qualifying event in Beijing later this year, provided they go through a rigorous background check.

The athletes would compete as neutral athletes, much like a small number did at the 2024 Paris Olympics, and only if they have no ties to the Russian or Belarusian military and have not publicly supported the invasion of Ukraine.

"The ISU has maintained its condemnation of the invasion of Ukraine," the organization said in a statement.

The plan was greeted by athletes at the world championships this week with a mixture of confusion and disappointment, support and rejection. But most athletes that discussed the situation with The Associated Press said they simply didn't care.

They have competed against Russians in every other Olympics. They would be fine with doing it again.

"It's something we've grown accustomed to being in my four Olympics, and hopefully heading to a fifth," said Evan Bates, who along with his partner, Madison Chock, won their third consecutive ice dance championship on Saturday night.

The last couple to accomplish that feat? Russians Oksana Grischuk and Evgeni Platov, who won four in a row from 1994-97.

"It's something completely out of our control. We can never control who is going to be let in, and what the political ramifications are," Bates continued. "It's outside our control, and the more we focus on it, it distracts from where our focus needs to be."

This isn't the first time that Chock and Bates have been through some uncertainty when it comes to the Russian team.

They were part of the American squad that initially earned a silver medal at the 2022 Beijing Games. But when Russian star Kamila Valieva was disqualified for a doping violation after a protracted investigation, the U.S. was elevated to gold, and Chock and Bates finally received their medals alongside their teammates at the Paris Games last summer.

Along with its gold medal Saturday night, the U.S. also stood atop the worlds podium with Alysa Liu, who broke a nearly two-decade drought for American women, and in the men's competition with Ilia Malinin, who won a second straight title by more than 30 points to stamp himself as the overwhelming favorite for the Winter Games.

Asked whether she thought the Russians should be at worlds, Liu replied simply: "I don't know. Do you?"

It's difficult to predict which Russians will attempt to qualify for Milano-Cortina — the ISU received a list of candidates to vet by its Feb. 28 deadline — but whoever clears the threshold likely will contend in two events in particular: women and pairs.

Anna Shcherbakova and Alexandra Trusova gave Russia gold and silver for the second consecutive Winter Games in Beijing, and a Russian has stood atop the podium in the women's event for the past three Olympics. And in pairs, Russians have taken gold in five of the past eight Olympics, and its skaters took silver and bronze at the Beijing Games.

The U.S. has not had a women's Olympic champion since Sarah Hughes in 2002. It has never won in pairs.

Last month, Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov told reporters that Russia would try to ensure the participation of its athletes at the Winter Games, according to Russian news agency Tass. The statement came before the election of Kirsty Coventry as the new IOC president, and with her arrival came new hope for Russia that it could be allowed back into the Olympics.

Already, it appears Russian President Vladimir Putin is attempting to make inroads, offering the former swimmer his "sincere congratulations" on her win. Putin said in a statement issued by the Kremlin, "The results of the vote convincingly attest to your high authority in the sporting world and the recognition of your outstanding personal achievements."

"We will defend the interests of our athletes and our Olympic team," said Peskov, when asked recently about Russia's potential involvement in the Milano-Cortina Games. "Settling this issue will require additional time and effort."

That time and effort is for others to expend, though. For skaters, the focus is on preparing themselves for an Olympic year.

"Our Olympic experiences, there's been Russians at every Olympics so far, and looking to the next, should they be there, that will make the Olympic Games feel like there's no caveat," Bates said. "And if we can execute our plan and fulfill the goals we set for ourselves and stand atop the podium, we won't worry about the rest of the field. We'll just focus on the skating and the training and the preparation and enjoying what could be our last Olympic experience."

Hamlin ends 10-year win drought at Martinsville

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — Denny Hamlin ended an agonizing 10-year winless streak at Martinsville Speedway, holding off teammate Christopher Bell in his home state to secure a spot in the NASCAR Cup Series playoffs.

The Joe Gibbs Racing star, who was raised a few hours away in the Richmond suburb of Chesterfield, leads active Cup drivers with six victories at Martinsville. But Sunday was his first checkered flag on the 0.526-mile oval in southwest Virginia since March 29, 2015 and also his first with crew chief Chris Gayle, who joined the No. 11 team this season.

With the 55th victory of his career (tying NASCAR Hall of Famer Rusty Wallace for 11th on the all-time list), Hamlin also snapped a 31-race winless streak since last April at Dover. He led a race-high 274 of the final 275 laps after taking the lead from Chase Elliott.

“Chris Gayle, all the engineers, the pit crew, everybody really just deciding they were going to come here with a different approach than what we’ve been over the last few years,” said Hamlin, who was a frequent contender during his 19-race win drought at Martinsville with 10 top fives. “It was just amazing. The car was great. It did everything I needed it do to. Just so happy to win with Chris, get 55. Gosh, I love winning here.”

Bell, who leads the Cup

Denny Hamlin (11) celebrates after winning a NASCAR Cup Series auto race in Martinsville, Va., Sunday, March 30. The win ended hamlin's 10-year win drought at Martinsville, his home track.

Series with three wins in 2025, finished second after starting from the pole position, and Bubba Wallace took third as Toyotas swept the top three. The Chevrolets of Elliott and Kyle Larson rounded out the top five.

“It was a great weekend for Joe Gibbs Racing,” said Bell, who had finished outside the top 10 the past two weeks. “Showed a lot of pace. All four of the cars were really good. Really happy to get back up front. The last two weeks have been rough for this 20 team. Really happy for Denny. He’s the Martinsville master. Second is not that bad.”

Hamlin had to survive four restarts — and a few strong challenges from Bell — in the final 125 laps as Martinsville produced the typical short-track skirmishes between several drivers.

The most notable multi-car accident involved Toyota drivers Ty Gibbs and Tyler Reddick, who had a civil postrace discussion in the pits.

BUBBA’S BIG DAY
Bubba Wallace tied a season best and improved to eighth in the Cup points standings but was left lamenting his lack of speed on restarts after being unable to pressure Hamlin.

“I’m trying to scratch my head on what I could have done different,” said Wallace, who drives the No. 23 Toyota for the 23XI Racing team co-owned by Hamlin and NBA legend Michael Jordan. “My restarts were terrible. One of my best traits, so I need to go back and study that. The final restart, I let that second get away. I don’t know if I had anything for Denny. It would have been fun to try. But all in all, a hell of a day for Toyota.”

SPECIAL DAY TURNS SOUR

After being honored Sunday morning with a Virginia General Assembly proclamation commending Wood Brothers Racing’s 75th anniversary, Josh Berry led 40 laps in the team’s hometown race before disaster struck. Berry’s No. 21 Ford was hit in the left rear by the No. 23 Toyota of Bubba Wallace while exiting the pits, causing Berry’s car to stall in Turn 2.

Berry, who can withstand a poor finish because his Las Vegas victory qualified him for the playoffs, returned after losing two laps for repairs. He still managed to lead the most laps for Wood Brothers Racing at Martinsville since NASCAR Hall of Famer David Pearson led 180 on April 29, 1973 (the team’s most recent victory at the track just east of its museum in Stuart, Virginia).

UP NEXT

The Cup Series will race next Sunday at historic Darlington Raceway, the South Carolina track that will celebrate a “throwback weekend” that encourages teams to feature vintage paint schemes and crew uniforms.

It’s the first of two annual races on the 1.366-mile oval that dates to 1950. Brad Keselowski won last year’s throwback race, and Chase Briscoe won the Southern 500 last September.

Stanford hires Reich as interim football coach

BY JOSH DUBOW
ASSOCIATED PRESS

STANFORD, Calif. — Stanford has hired former NFL head coach Frank Reich as the interim football coach following the firing of Troy Taylor, a person familiar with the move told The Associated Press.

The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the hiring hadn’t been announced. ESPN first reported the move.

Football program general manager Andrew Luck made the decision last week to fire Taylor after a report became public that Taylor had been investigated twice for allegedly mistreating staffers.

Luck opted to hire his old coach on the Indianapolis Colts for the job for this season. Reich coached six years in the NFL for Indianapolis and Carolina, including the 2018 season when Luck was his starting quarterback.

Stanford is trying to rebuild its struggling football program after four straight seasons with a 3-9 record, including the last two with Taylor in charge.

Luck was hired last November to run the football program and report directly to school president Jon Levin. Stanford is also currently searching for an athletic director with Alden Mitchell hired last week as interim following Bernard Muir’s decision to step down.

Luck said earlier this month that Reich was one of the people he has consulted since taking this new job.

Reich played 13 years in the NFL as mostly a quarterback before having a long coaching career in the NFL starting in 2006 in Indianapolis. He was offensive coordinator in 2017 when Philadelphia won its first Super Bowl and was hired after that season as head coach for the Colts.

Reich and Luck teamed to go 10-6 and win a playoff game that season before Luck abruptly retired just before the start of the 2019 season. Reich made the playoffs just one time in his final four seasons without Luck on the Colts and was fired during the 2022 season.

He was hired the following year by Carolina and was fired during the 2023 season after starting his tenure 1-10.

ESPN reported two weeks ago that Taylor had been investigated twice since taking over before the 2023 season over allegations of hostile and aggressive behavior, as well as personal attacks, against female staff members.

Both investigations determined that Taylor’s treatment of employees, particularly of women, was inconsistent with Stanford’s standards, according to ESPN.
